Cellulose Fibres

A woman with curly hair and glasses, wearing a green shirt, is seen from the side, smiling and looking towards a computer screen. The screen displays a video conference with four other participants: a man in a blue shirt, a woman in a white shirt, a woman in a yellow shirt, and a man in a green shirt. The text 'nova talks' is overlaid in large yellow letters, followed by a subtitle in white text.

Putting Live Discussions on the Map

Spotlight on Cellulose Fibres

nova talks are digital, interactive events that bring current topics into focus – open to all interested participants and free of charge. Each session explores a specific subject in depth, such as cutting-edge fibre innovations, emerging technologies, regulatory developments, sustainability strategies, and market trends.

Unlike a single annual conference, nova talks offer ongoing engagement opportunities throughout the year. While international stakeholders benefit from continuous access to valuable live discussions and a relevant audience, nova talks partners can rely on the professional expertise of the nova-Institute as independent research institute and science-based consultancy.

Hosted by nova-Institute

2 speakers, 1 live discussion, moderated by the nova-Institute – this unique format allows you to discuss your innovation in front of experts and potential clients. Each session is professionally hosted and moderated by the nova-Institute, ensuring consistently high quality and in-depth content.

While the nova-Institute guarantees a strong framework and visibility, your organisation defines the topic and suggests the speakers.

Through joint discussions between you and other experts, we will focus on your key topics and engage with the audience in a meaningful way.
